

Christianity

outdated, bigoted, untrue?

Ever found yourself thinking that Christianity is just ... outdated? Not only has it had its time, but it's now plain bigoted and mean. It's irrelevant and untrue.

You're not alone in thinking this way. Rachel used to think Christians were stupid bigots. She was an atheist, living with her girlfriend and studying at Yale. Christianity was certainly NOT for her. But she discovered beauty in God that was undeniable, and it changed everything.

Rebecca McLaughlin, on the other hand, has spent her career looking closely at why people have turned so hard against Christianity. And she says that - despite what you may hear these days - Christianity is the original source and firmest foundation for true diversity, equality, and life-transforming love.

How could this be true?

Speakers: Rachel Gilson and Rebecca McLaughlin

Date: Thursday 3rd August

Time: 6.45pm for 7pm start

Venue: 143 Ann Street, Brisbane

Cost: $22.50

Tickets: thirdspace.org.au/outdated undeceptions.com/outdated

undeceptions.